JOIN AND LEAD FORMATION FLIGHTS WITH 2 OR MORE AIRCRAFT

EXPERIENCE THE THRILL OF CLOSE FORMATION FLYING

Formation flying grew initially from the military's need to get large numbers of aircraft from one place to another at the same time. It then evolved to play a crucial role in air force tactics during conflicts. Today in General Aviation, formation flying is used in a range of scenarios including flying displays and air-to-air photography.

Learning the skills and techniques to master formation flying is an exciting challenge, and the thrill of flying up close and personal with another aircraft right next to you is an experience that puts a big smile on the face of even the most seasoned pilots.

LEARN TO FLY AS WINGMAN, THEN LEAD THE FORMATION YOURSELF!

The Learn To Fly Formation Flying Endorsement course will teach you the necessary ground theory required to plan, brief and fly a safe formation sortie with 2 or more aircraft.

You will master flying as a wingman in Echelon, Line-Astern and Line-Abreast positions whilst the formation manoeuvres as one. You will also learn the crucial skills required to fly out in front, before you lead the formation flight yourself.

Whether you are leading the flight or flying as a wingman, formation flying is an experience like no other. Even highly experienced pilots describe flying in formation with other aircraft as some of the most gratifying flying they have ever done.

OUR GRADUATE: JOSH BEST

"Formation flying is all about making small and precise changes, and requires lots of concentration. This means that completing a Formation Flying Endorsement is a fantastic opportunity to learn how to really finesse your flying. Learning how to fly in formation and then actually lead the formation yourself is a lot of fun, and an exciting experience even for highly experienced pilots. Learn To Fly's Formation Flying Endorsement course allows you to choose between the Sling 2 and Diamond DA40 aircraft, and is led by a pilot with some serious flying experience in Laurie Byrnes." - Josh Best, Grade 2 LTF Instructor
